About the EMR Alliance

Initially established in 2010 as part of the Victorian HACC program, the EMR Alliance supports local CHSP and HACC PYP service providers in the eastern metropolitan region of Melbourne. We work together to share good practice that promotes inclusive access and person centred care. The EMR Alliance provides a forum that promotes a strong partnership approach through effective information sharing and collaborative problem solving.

The key objectives of the Alliance are to:

- create a shared understanding of the Wellness and Reablement approach, Diversity Planning and Practice initiatives and change management associated with aged care sector
- strengthen working relationships between local HACC PYP & CHSP agencies, and
- build the capacity of local agencies to embed key quality improvement elements as part of service delivery

The Alliance meets bi-monthly and encourages the involvement of senior management, program leaders, clinicians and program staff from HACC PYP and CHSP funded providers, service delivery partners and key stakeholders in the region.

To learn more about the Alliance please feel free to read the Discussion Paper, which documents the journey of the Alliance and its role in local practice change. The Discussion Paper provides information about the establishment of the Alliance, its structure, key activities and achievements, benefits and challenges, key enablers and our vision for the Alliance moving forward.

Diversity and Wellness & Reablement

Wellness & Reablement

The Aged Care Sector is undergoing significant change to ensure that people who receive services are supported to remain as independent as possible. This approach is consistent with a broader global shift towards person centred approaches across health and aged care policy and practice (WHO 2015)

For the CHSP this vision will be achieved through:

...the delivery of timely, high quality entry-level support services taking into account each person's individual goals, preferences and choices – and underpinned by a strong emphasis on wellness and reablement – the CHSP will help frail older people stay living in their own homes for as long as they can and wish to do so.'
(CHSP manual April, 2017 p3, section 1.2.1 Vision)

In Victoria and HACC PYP, this approach has previously been described as the Active Service Model:

'...a quality improvement initiative that explicitly focuses on implementing person and family-centred care, wellness promotion, capacity building and restorative care in service delivery.' 'This initiative aims to ensure that people attain the greatest level of independence they can and are actively involved in making decisions about their life. This includes understanding their goals, their decisions about the type of services they wish to receive and the desired outcomes'
(DH 2013 p. 93).

PLACING THE CLIENT AT THE CENTRE

Wellness can be applied across all service outcomes with the aim to promote independence and autonomy by working with people, their families and carers to help them do as much as they can for themselves and to maintain their quality of life.

We can do this through a model that includes:

- Assessment - a conversation that helps us to get to know the person, including their strengths and what motivates them
- Planning - that is inclusive of the person (their family and carers) and is based on what is important to the person now and into the future and
- Service Delivery - that is flexible and responsive to the individual needs of the person and includes regularly 'checking in' to find out how things are going

While it is important that the quality of support we offer through assessment, planning and service delivery is consistent for everyone, we must still be focused on providing a service that is individual and flexible to suit each person. People are experts in their own lives and are therefore best placed to be involved in, and plan their own futures.

The CHSP are continuing to progress work to better understand wellness and reablement in the aged home care context. The outcomes of this work will inform the development of strategies for the sector to embed wellness and reablement approaches across the service delivery platform.

Diversity and Inclusion – Removing barriers and improving the quality of services

Diversity describes the personal characteristics and attributes that help shape who we are and what is important to us.

Valuing diversity and creating an inclusive and welcoming environment is about recognising, respecting and drawing on the positive aspect of difference whilst proactively challenging discrimination and removing the barriers and disadvantage that people can experience.

The positive steps we take to empower people and communities to be active participants and leaders is at the core of creating inclusive access. Developing services that respond to the diverse backgrounds, interests and needs of people will ensure they feel valued and are receiving services that are appropriate and person centred.

Diversity Planning and Practice

Through the Commonwealth Home Support Program (CHSP) and HACC Program for Younger People (HACC PYP), Diversity Planning and Practice has been established to remove the barriers people can experience in accessing services. It also seeks to improve the capacity of the service system to respond appropriately to client's interests and needs.

Diversity Planning requires organisations to learn about their local community in order to understand which community groups aren't accessing their services and why and then develop a plan to address that underrepresentation. Under the CHSP and HACC PYP diversity planning includes a particular focus on the following characteristics referred to as special needs groups:

- People from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities
- People from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- People living with dementia

- People who experience financial or social disadvantage
- People known as Forgotten Australians, Former Child Migrants and the Stolen Generations
- People who are homeless and those at risk of homelessness
- People who are lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender or intersex
- Parents separated from children by forced adoption or removal
- People living in rural or remote communities
- Veterans

While the above characteristics are identified as special needs groups, they do not represent all aspects of diversity and organisations must consider diversity in its broadest terms. It is also vital that organisations consider how diversity characteristics intersect with each other as highlighted in the Diversity Jigsaw and discussed in the Connecting the Pieces video and resource

Further information and resources

The EMR Alliance has developed a video and accompanying resource that articulates the unique aspects of diversity and person centred care and importantly, the relationship between these approaches, how they influence each other and the need for diversity and person centred care to be understood throughout the continuum of the client's journey. The Connecting the Pieces video is available to view on our website and you tube channel.
